"Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, and honour, and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created."—Rev. iv. 11.

DUBLIN:
PRINTED AND PUBLISHED FOR THE COMMITTEE, BY JOHN FALCONER, 53, UPPER SACKVILLE-STREET, AND SOLD IN THE BUILDING—PRICE ONE SHILLING.
"Again—the band of commerce was design'd to associate all the branches of mankind; And if a boundless plenty be the robe, Trade is the golden girdle of the globe. Wise to promote whatever end He means, God opens fruitful nature's various scenes. Each climate needs what other climes produce, And offers something to the general use; No land but listens to the common call, And in return receives supply from all. This genial intercourse, and mutual aid, Cheers what were else a universal shade, Calls nature from her ivy-mantled den, And softens human rock-work into men. Ingenious Art, with her expressive face, Steps forth to fashion and refine the race; Not only fills necessity's demand, But overcharges her capacious hand: Capricious taste itself can crave no more, Than she supplies from her abounding store: She strikes out all that luxury can ask, And gains new vigour at her endless task. Hers is the spacious arch, the shapely spire, The painter's pencil, and the poet's lyre; From her the canvass borrows light and shade, And verse, more lasting, hues that never fade. She guides the finger o'er the dancing keys, Gives difficulty all the grace of ease, And pours a torrent of sweet notes around, Fast as the thirsting ear can drink the sound. 'Tis thus reciprocating, each with each, Alternately the nations learn and teach; While Providence enjoins to ev'ry soul A union with the vast terraqueous whole."

* Nations who have Consuls in Dublin.
PREFACE.

The history of the present Exhibition will be probably best detailed by the subjoined correspondence between W. Dargan, Esq. and the Royal Dublin Society, merely premising that, for the last 25 years, the Royal Dublin Society has held Triennial Exhibitions of Manufactures, and that the last Exhibition was held in 1850.

At a meeting of the Royal Dublin Society held on Thursday, June 24, 1852, the following letter from W. Dargan, Esq. was read:

"Dublin, 24th June, 1852.

"Mr. Dargan understanding that the year 1853 will be the year for holding the Triennial Exhibition of Manufactures of the Royal Dublin Society, and being desirous of giving such Exhibition a character of more than usual prominence, and to render it available for the Manufactures of the three Kingdoms, proposes to place the sum of twenty thousand pounds in the hands of a Special Executive Committee, on the following conditions:

"1st. That a suitable building shall be erected on the lawn of the Royal Dublin Society.
"2nd. That the opening of the Exhibition shall not be later than June, 1853.
"3rd. That a Special Executive Committee shall be nominated by three gentlemen on the part of Mr. Dargan, to be named by him, and by three gentlemen to be selected by the Council of the Royal Dublin Society from that body.
"4th. That Mr. Dargan shall have the nomination of the Chairman, Deputy Chairman, and of the Secretary of the Special Executive Committee.
"5th. That at the termination of the Exhibition, the building shall be taken by Mr. Dargan, and shall become his property at a valuation by competent persons.
"6th. That if, after payment of all expenses, the proceeds of the Exhibition do not amount to £20,000, with interest thereon at 5 per cent., Mr. Dargan shall receive the proceeds, less all expenses incurred.

"If the proceeds, after payment of all expenses, amount to £20,000, with interest thereon at 5 per cent., Mr. Dargan is to receive £20,000, and interest at 5 per cent. If the proceeds, after payment of all expenses, exceed the sum of £20,000, with interest thereon at 5 per cent., the Executive Committee is to have the disposal of the surplus.

"The amount of the valuation of the building is to be considered as cash paid to Mr. Dargan.

(Approved.)

"Wm. DARGAN."
Upon receipt of this letter a resolution was passed by the Royal Dublin Society, cordially binding the Society to co-operate with Mr. Dargan by adopting his proposal, and referring to the Council to take steps in conjunction with Mr. Dargan or his appointees to carry out fully the views contained in his letter. In accordance with this recommendation, at a subsequent meeting of the Council, the following members were appointed as the representatives of the Royal Dublin Society on the Executive Committee:—L. E. Foot, C. J. Fairfield, and W. Sweetman; and on the part of Mr. Dargan, G. Roe, Sir E. M'Donnell, Hon. George Handcock—G. Roe, Esq. and C. J. Fairfield, be respectively nominated Chairman and Vice-Chairman, and C. P. Roney, Esq. Secretary. By subsequent elections the General Executive Committee was constituted as follows, and the paid officers elected:—

C. P. Roney, Esq. A.B. Secretary. John C. Deane, Esq. Assistant Secretary.

Robert Heron, Esq. Secretary to the Committee.

The following arrangement of Sub-Committees was adopted for different departments of the undertaking:—

General Superintendent, R. A Thompson, Esq.

British Department.—Assistant General Superintendents, Mr. C. C. Adley, C.E. Mr. J. O'Hagan.

Superintendent of Districts.

District 1. Mr. C. C. Adley, C.E.
District 2. Mr. W. Carr.
District 3. Mr. C. H. Bingham.
District 4. Mr. Corrigan.

Assistant to General Superintendent, Mr. Frederick G. Heatly.

Foreign Correspondent, and Superintendent of the Foreign Department, Mr. F. M. Harman; Deputy Superintendent, Mr. A. A. Jacob.

In the Fine Arts Department, the hanging of the Pictures was entrusted to John Gernon, Esq.
The disposition of the Sculpture through the Building to John E. Jones, Esq.
In the Finance Department—Inspector of Accounts, Mr. Brown.
Chief Financial Officer, Mr. T. D. Jones.
Superintendent of the Catalogue Department, Mr. William McDermott.

Office Department.—Sale of Season Tickets, Mr. Nickson. Correspondence, Mr. Killingly—Mr. Curry.

The Executive Committee, immediately on its appointment, advertised for plans for a suitable building to be erected on the lawn of the Royal Dublin Society, and having requested the assistance of Messrs. G. Miller, G. W. Hemans, and Lanyon, in selecting that most suitable for the purpose, resolved to adopt that submitted by J. Benson, Esq. architect, who also superintended the works. The plan as originally adopted was subsequently modified by the addition of the northern and southern halls. In September, Mr. Dargan finding that the accommodation provided by the original plans would not be sufficient for the anticipated wants of the Exhibition, proposed to the Royal Dublin Society to advance a still further sum of £6,000, to be applied on the same conditions as the first £20,000, and in February of this year he proposed to enlarge the Exhibition Building by the addition of buildings around the front court and the agricultural exhibition yard, for which purpose he agreed with the Royal Dublin Society to place in the hands of the Executive Committee a still further sum of £14,000, making the whole sum advanced by him £40,000. It is needless to say that the total expenditure has far exceeded this sum.

MACHINERY.*

This department is the most important in the entire Exhibition, for the class of objects which it contains have ever been the most potent instruments of man's dominion and progress. Without the lever, the wheel, the cord, and the inclined plane in its various forms, he could neither have tilled the ground nor subdued the wild beast in the infancy of our race; in its maturity, the printing press, the steam engine, and the electric telegraph are the earthly ministers of his destiny. Machinery, as the great origin of its name implies, is the triumph of intellectual power over mere force, which it disposes and transforms at pleasure though it cannot create it. Even the more obvious and palpable energies which surround us, animal strength, the fall of water, the wind, will scarcely serve us without its aid; and the mightier but invisible agencies of heat, affinity, electricity, magnetism, and light, will not obey us. Yet it controls even these to work our will, and to realize for us in each passing hour prosperity beyond the dreams of fable—marvels surpassing the wonder of enchantment.

Machines may be considered, with respect to the three points indicated, first as collectors of power; secondly, as modifying its distribution; thirdly, as guiding its application; and all are well illustrated here. A few references may not be useless. For the first—

1. Water-power, so abundant in this country, is utilized by wheels, turbines, &c.

2. Heat is represented by the steam engines.

In connexion with these, the Indicator should be studied, which traces a record of the action at every other point of the stroke. Fire arms belong to the same class.

3. Electric apparatus: voltaic batteries of various forms, in which chemical action evolves electricity; magneto-electric—in which magnetism, combined with mechanical power, produce it; and induction coils—which, by the intermittance of a feeble current of electricity, produce one of considerable intensity.

4. Electro-magnetic apparatus: it evolves magnetism by the transfer of electricity; electro-magnets, more powerful than any other machine in which the action is a motive force; electric clocks, and various kinds of electric telegraphs.

5. Electro-metallurgic apparatus; applying electricity to subvert chemical affinity, and deposit metals in given forms, performing the work of the engraver and goldsmith.

6. Photographic apparatus, where light forms pictures by evolving chemical forces.

Secondly—Machinery fulfils still more important purposes, by concentrating either of the two elements of power, force and space. One can be increased by lessening the other. If a great resistance is to be overcome by a small force, this must be accumulated in the working point during a proportional time or space, and then made to act. Examples are the steam hammer, printing machinery, and all kinds of presses. Less obvious illustrations are the Dioptric Lighthouse apparatus and the telescope, the former condensing into a horizontal sheet the light which its lamp would scatter unprofitably in every direction; the other condensing into a point the rays which fall on its object-glass or mirror, and thus giving them intensity enough to affect the eye. Grubb's object-glasses, the largest ever made in Ireland, have been polished by machinery.

On the other hand, it is often necessary to obtain a speed far surpassing that of the moving force, or to extend the time of its operation; this mode of action is shown in the balances of Oertling, when a minute difference of weight produces a considerable motion of the index; in clocks, when a weight raised a few feet in a few seconds, maintains the motion of its pendulum for days and weeks; in circular saws, and in the machines for drying cloth or purifying sugars by centrifugal force; in many of the instruments of measurement. And last, and most important, machinery guides the application of power with precision according to any given law. Eye and hand of even the best workmen may err, but the machine never fails; and nothing gives a higher idea of the endowment which man has received from his Creator, than to see these inanimate combinations doing in perfection, tasks which seem to belong only to living and thinking agents. This principle pervades every machine in the Exhibition, but some deserve special reference.

1. The Machine for Weighing Gold.—The bank clerks did this slowly and imperfectly; in fact (and this applies to all processes which do not exert the intellect) such work injures the mind. This works twenty times as fast, separates the correct and light, and makes no mistake.

2. Lathes, and the Analogous Machines for Planing and Boring.—In these the points of the material to be fashioned, or the tool, are guided to move in circles, right lines, ellipses, or the complicated curves of epicycloids and rose-work. With this, high speed is often combined; and the result is truth of workmanship, which the hand alone could not reach, and rapidity of production: which two combined, are the essential causes of the perfection to which machinery has attained.

3. Looms for figured Textures.—In forming these, the warp and weft must intersect variously according to the proposed pattern. In the east this variation is still made directly by hand, and though the more effective means afforded by the tapestry loom have long been known in Europe, yet they bear no comparison with the invention of Jacquard. In it the changes are made by perforated plates (themselves furnished by a machine whose action is mechanical. And it has produced a complete revolution in every branch of this manufacture. The old stocking loom, and the machine for sewing and knitting, are still more curious examples of rivalry with human fingers.

5. Grubb's Great Equatorial.—When a star is observed with high powers it will leave the field of the telescope in a few seconds. The instrument, must, therefore, be made to follow in its track, and with its speed. Extreme accuracy in both is necessary, as the mass to be governed is very great, and any error is greatly magnified. The clock which moves it deserves special notice.

6. This principle even applies to operations which at first seem purely intellectual; and calculating machines are the result.

The simplest mathematical process is addition; it is shown by the counters of metres, the machinery for numbering railway tickets, and in Grubb's machine for numbering bank notes. But nearly all mathematical relations can be developed by addition; and thus, Mr. Babbage was enabled to execute, by mechanism, the computations of mathematical tables, and even to solve questions which are above any known resources of the geometer.

These examples have been indicated with a view to show in what spirit this part of the collection should be examined by those who wish to view it with something better than ignorant wonder. To Ireland the instruction which it offers is peculiarly important, for her industrial resources are, to a great extent, paralysed by the want of machinery; and whatever diffuses a knowledge of its powers will develop them.
Central Hall.

EQUESTRIAN STATUE OF HER MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE QUEEN, by the Baron Marochetti. This work is exhibited by the kind permission of the "Committee of the Queen's Statue," at Glasgow, where it is about to be erected in bronze.

1139 His Royal Highness Prince Albert.—Her Majesty's Grand Centre Piece—was executed under the instructions of H. R. H. Prince Albert; it represents a group of horses round a Temple or Kiosk, with their attendants, the figures and horses with Persian greyhound, were grouped, designed, and modelled by Mr. Cotterell; the Kiosk was modelled by Mr. E. Percy, formerly of Dublin; and the base by Mr. William Spencer. The whole executed in silver, by the Messrs. Garrard, Haymarket.

1152 The Earl of Eglinton and Winton.—The "Emperor's Vase," won at Ascot, by the Earl of Eglinton's "The Flying Dutchman," by Bay Middleton, out of Barbelle, in June, 1850; ridden by Marlow. —Subject: Eighth Labour of Hercules. Hercules having heard of the atrocious cruelties practised by Diomedes, Tyrant of Thrace, he being in the habit of causing his captives to be torn in pieces by his ferocious horses, he slew him and the animals, and let the captives free. This vase and group were designed and modelled by Cotterell, of London, and executed in silver by the Messrs. Garrard, Haymarket.

1152a The Goodwood Cup, won by the Earl of Eglinton's "Van Tromp," by Lanercost, out of Barbelle, in July, 1848; ridden by Marlow.—Subject: "The Battle of the Standard."

1138 Colonel the Earl of Cardigan and the Officers of the 11th Hussars.—Silver equestrian statue by Cotterell, presented to the officers of the 11th Hussars by their late Colonel, his Royal Highness Prince Albert, February, 1844.

1140 Colonel & Officers of the 7th Hussars.—Silver equestrian statue of the Marquis of Anglesey, by Cotterell, presented to the officers of the 7th Hussars, by the Marquis of Anglesey.

M. Andre, Paris.—A fountain in cast iron, designed by Lienard.

88 London & Penzance Serpentine Co. Mr. John Organ, Manager, Penzance, Cornwall, Prod.—Ladies' inlaid work tables; octagon vases; Albert vase; pedestal and vase; chimney piece; pair of Luxor obelisks; scrap inlaid zodiac vase; pair of Hebe ewers; pair of King's needles; large ink-stands; pair of Hebe jugs and centre piece; pair large of bell vases; large tazza; Wellington tablets; pair of fluted vases; miniature table; crosses; polished slab.

321 Coalbrookdale Company, Coalbrookdale, near Wellington, Shropshire, Des. Inv. and Prop.—An ornamental tent, with pilasters, &c. of iron; an ornamental iron fountain; "The Combat," bronzed; register stoves and fenders, of new and unique design; hat, coat, and umbrella stands, of unique design, bronzed; garden and hall chairs, and tables; ornamental vases in cast iron; brackets for gas, &c. electrobronzed; hot air stoves; flower pot stands; cooking-glass and frame, in iron, gilt; an economical cooking range, complete; two flower vases in bronze, electro-gilt; a variety of ornamental castings of figures, &c. electro-bronzed. Samples of pig-iron, bar iron, and plates, as follows:—grey pig iron for light and heavy castings; strong grey forge pig iron; mottled iron; white iron; samples of forge and of finished bars; chequered plates for flooring.

503 TIM, BROTHERS, and Co. Dublin, Manu.—Loom for the manufacture of velvets; jacquard loom with brocading machine at work upon a pattern designed in the Dublin School of Design.

196 ATKINSON, R. & Co. Dublin, Manu. and Des. —Rich gold tissued and brocaded Irish poplins, (designed by pupils of the Dublin School of Design); Irish poplins, plain, figured, double, plaided, shot, and in various other styles; gold tissued and figured poplin waistcoatings; specimens of tapestry woven in Dublin in 1738, being a portrait of George II. in a frame.

196A TIM, BROTHERS, & Co. Des. and Manu.—Specimens of plain watered tartan; fancy rich figured and rich brocaded tissue poplin; poplin robes; Glacé silks, rich velvets, vestings, &c.; specimens of Limerick lace, manufactured by David Mc'Clure of Limerick.

504 ATKINSON, R. and Co. Dublin, Prop.—Mahogany and brass mounted Irish poplin loom, with jacquard machine, and new brocading apparatus, at work.

500 TODD, BURNS, & Co. 47 Mary St. Dublin, Manu. and Prop.—Jacquard machine at work manufacturing an original design in Irish poplins, brocaded in three colours; jacquard machine turned by steam power, and at work, manufacturing original patterns in silk figured ribbons, in ten different pieces of various colors. (Made by Sharp, Odell, and Jury, Coventry). Specimens of Irish fronting linens, bleached by a new process, occupying only 10 days; Irish cambric handkerchiefs; muslin lace curtains; Limerick lace; Coventry ribbons; Irish needlework and crochet lace; upholstery ornaments, with chair in Irish needlework; foreign and British printed muslins, silks and shawls; historical piece in Irish needlework, in gilt frame; drawing and dining-room curtains in French brocatelle with gold cornices; library curtains of crimson damask, of Irish manufacture, with gold cornices; bed-room curtain, in French printed Tournay, with patent noiseless pole and rings; rich brass and iron tube bedsteads, with specimens of damasks; patent Axminster carpets.

154 KEELY & LEECH, 108 Grafton St. Dublin, Manu. and Des.—A rich tobined poplin, the flowers shaded in various colours, the ground composed of antique scroll work, veined with gold tissue brocade. Plain, figured, watered, double and demy cords; Bayadere poplins; plain and fancy waistcoating.

903 CHANCE, BROTHERS & Co. Birmingham, Manu. —First order fixed dioptric lighthouse apparatus, with catadioptric zones, constructed according to the system of Augustin Fresnel: the lamp in the centre of the apparatus on the moderator principle, consisting of burner with four concentric wicks, is of immense power, the light in clear weather being visible 50 miles distant. Concentric polygonal lens, eight of which, arranged octagonally, constitute the revolving portion of a first order dioptric revolving light. Fourth order dioptric lighthouse apparatus, similar to the first order light, but on a reduced scale, suitable for lighting the entrance to harbours, rivers, &c. visible at a distance of 15 miles. Glass shades, round, oval, and square.

140 ROYAL SOCIETY FOR THE PROMOTION AND IMPROVEMENT OF THE GROWTH OF FLAX IN IRELAND, Belfast.—Series of specimens illustrating the preparation of the flax plant for manufacturing purposes, and the different processes employed in the course of manufacture in Ireland:—

1. Flax-straw, dried with the seed on.
2. Flax-straw after steeping.
3. Samples of seed; samples of seed capsules.
3. Flax-straw, steeped and rolled for scutching.
   ,, Sample of scutching-tow.
4. Scutched flax fibre of various qualities.
5. Hackled flax fibre of various qualities.
6. Hackle-tow of various qualities.
7. Line and tow silver.
8. Line rovings for 130 lea, and 260 lea yarns.
   ,, Line and tow yarns from 6 lea to 280 lea.
9. Specimens of unbleached and bleached fabrics, including heavy and light linens, drills, diapers, damasks, lawns, cambrics, musquito-netting, &c. &c.
10. Specimens of fancy, dyed, and printed fabrics, including drills, bed-ticks, floor-cloths, lawns, cambrics, linens, &c. &c.

Series of samples of foreign flax, used in the Irish linen manufacture, and of Irish and English flax, treated by peculiar processes, viz.:—Samples of Rus-cian, Dutch, Belgian (Courtrai and Flemish), and Egyptian flax, in the scutched and hackled state; samples of English and Irish flax, prepared by the patent processes of Schenck (hot water), and of Watt (steaming), and of Irish flax, dried and steeped on the "Courtrai" system. Case of specimens of linen yarns,

&c. the manufacture of Messrs. Gradwell, Chadwick &
Co. Drogheda. Case of specimens of linen fabrics, &c.
the manufacture of Messrs. John Hind & Sons, Belfast.

1149 Classon, J. Northumberland Buildings, Dublin, Manu. and Prop.—Carvings in bog oak of several of the antiquities of Ireland, comprising the rock of Cashel, Clonmacnoise, Monasterboice, Glendalough, &c. contained in a glazed frame, the front of which, carved by the celebrated Grinling Gibbons, represents as emblems of war, the weapons used at the battle of the Boyne; brooches, bracelets, and other ladies' ornaments in bog oak.

1402 Shaw, C.—Specimens in ivory of mechanical sculpture, produced in a turning lathe by machinery invented by exhibitor.

1125 Price's Patent Candle Company, Belmont, Vauxhall, Surrey, Inv. and Manu.—Specimens illustrating the Company's patent processes for making palm oil and other fatty substances into pure white candles by distillation, &c.; specimens of the palm oil fruit, and of vegetable tallow, butters and waxes;
specimens illustrating the manufacture of night lights;
candles, night lights, and oils of various descriptions.

213 Marsland, Son & Co. Manchester, Des. and Manu.—Cotton, in skeins and on reels, for sewing, crochet, guipure, knitting and embroidery purposes;
samples of horse hair, scarlet, white and black;
brooches, bracelets, wreaths, head-dresses, fancy buttons and other ornaments made of horse hair.
Gold and silver thread; dress ornaments of gold and silver, mixed with horse hair.

684 Grubb, Thomas, 15 Leinster Sq. Rathmines, Dublin, Inv. and Manu.—Large equatorial instrument, with improved clock-work, and system of coun-terpoise, carrying achromatic telescope of 12 inches clear aperture, and 20 feet focus; model equatorial, the form being specially adapted for carrying large New-	onian reflectors (to 6 feet diameter), the present model carrying one of 15 inches; small equatorial, adapted to refracting telescopes, of from 3 to 5 inches aperture; case of achromatic object glasses for telescopes, and photographic purposes; improved oxyhydrogen microscope, polariscope, and economic double lantern (requiring only one-half the usual quantity of the mixed gases for dissolving views).

699 Kirkman, J. & Son, London, Inv. and Manu.
—Pianofortes of various styles and descriptions.

712 Moses, Marcus, 4 & 5 Westmoreland St.
Dublin, Imp.—Specimens of pianofortes and harps, of different classes, and in various woods, manufactured to order, expressly for this Exhibition, by Messrs.
Broadwood and Sons; Messrs. Collard and Collard, and Messrs. S. and P. Erard.
1126 Rathborne, J. J. Essex St. Dublin.—A block of refined spermaceti, illustrative of its crystalization.

185 Houldsworth, J. & Co. Portland St. Mills, Manchester, Manu. and Des.—A collection of fabrics for furniture and ecclesiastical decorations, manufactured in Manchester by the exhibitors.

Central Compartment.—Embroideries by patent machinery on cloth, satins, &c. This kind of embroidery is peculiar, and has advantages, inasmuch as the needlework is equally complete on both sides of the material on which it is wrought. An application of embroidery to panelling is illustrated. The design in the central panel embodies a complimentary national allusion, and is suggestive of the introduction of heraldic insignia, cyphers, monograms, and special symbols, in similar positions. A variety of embroidered valances is exhibited along the top of the case.

Compartment on the left hand.—Specimens of figured satins, damasks, brocatelles, guipurettes, &c. The guipurette is an entirely new fabric of a very effective character; it is equally rich and perfect on both sides of the fabric, and therefore no lining is necessary.

Compartment on the right hand.—Bordered satins, and bordered Terrys. Several medallions and smaller borders are exhibited in harmony with the various styles, valances, coverings of chairs, sofas, &c. Bordered cloths and Reps curtains, eligible for dining room, libraries and morning room.

110 McBirney, Collis, & Co. Aston's Qy. 1165 HUNT & ROSKELL, late STORR & MORTIMER, 156 New Bond St. London, Manu.—A candelabrum in silver—a testimonial presented to the Most Noble the Marquis of Tweeddale.

The group represents an incident recorded in Buchanan's History of Scotland, said to have occurred in the reign of Kenneth III. A.D. 980, and to which tradition ascribes the origin of the noble house of Hay.

"The Danes having invaded Scotland, were unsuccessfully opposed by the Scots who fled. A countryman named Hay, was, with his two sons, ploughing in a neighbouring field, by the pass of Luncarty; when Hay seized the yoke from his oxen, and his sons, whatever instruments came readiest, and took their stations in the narrow pass, through which the fugitive Scots must proceed, and forced their countrymen back upon the Danes; and, joining in the conflict, successfully routed the latter. After this gallant exploit, Hay entered the city of Perth in triumph, carrying his yoke, and accompanied by his sons and a numerous retinue."

"At a consultation of the nobles, held a few days after at Scone, nobility was conferred upon Hay and his sons; and the king gave them as much land as the falcon would fly over. The falcon flew over six miles of country, afterwards called Errol. The king also assigned them three shields, or escutcheons, to intimate that the father and two sons had proved the three shields of Scotland."

These two latter scenes are displayed in basso relievo on the base, which is also embellished with figures of the wolf, boar, and dogs, illustrative of the sports of the period. The flowing branches of the candelabrum are enriched with vine.

118 Andrews, M. Royal Manufactory of Linen and Damask, Ardoyno, Belfast, Des. Manu. and Prop. No. 1. One super-extra double damask table cloth, new pattern, “the Clarendon pattern,” the border is composed of a rich selection of flowers drawn from nature; the centre, a group of flowers, also from nature, which springs from a scroll resting on a shell, and supported by bullrushes, &c. &c.; the filling consists of a large piece of shamrock and flax, with detached amaryllis and convolvulus surrounding the centre, the whole interspersed with small sprigs of flax and shamrock combined. Two table napkins to match, one with, and one without sprigs,—this pattern was designed specially for the table linen presented by the Royal Society for the Cultivation of Flax in Ireland, to the Earl of Clarendon when Lord Lieutenant, with his lordship's arms blazoned in the centre, surrounded by various heraldic embellishments.

No 2. One super-extra double damask table cloth, new pattern, “the Ardoyno Exhibition Pattern,” the border is composed of a rich scroll, each compartment terminating with a distinct flower; the corners represent rhododendron in flower, while groups of hyacinth, crown imperial, hollyhock, foxglove, stocks, lilies, &c. compose the end and side centres of the border, and the margin represents heart's-ease leaves, with the flowers laid thereon; the centre of the cloth consists of a basket of rich flowers placed on a rustic stump, which rests on a group of flowers at the base, and is supported by an arum on the one side and streelitzia on the other, the whole being surrounded by a light wreath of flowers chiefly climbers, with a running ground harmonizing in the same style—the flowers all from nature. Two table napkins to match.

No. 3. One extra double damask table cloth, new pattern, “the Fern Rustic Pattern”; border composed of branches of trees interlaced with flowers and various climbers, and shamrock margin; the centre is a varied collection of ferns, supported by pieces of trumpet flowers and leopard's bane, with festoons of running flowers between, and a filling of a variety of fern sprigs, all drawn from nature.

447 A The Fire Annihilator Co. 105 Leadenhall St. London, Exhibitors.—Phillip's Patent Fire Annihilator. This invention consists in the application of a vapour composed of carbonic acid, nitrogen gas, and steam, by the action of which the flame is annihilated, the smoke absorbed, the heat reduced, and the atmosphere rendered perfectly respirable. The machine is in operation in 30 seconds, and consists of an iron vessel having an air and a water chamber, and two moveable perforated cylinders. Into the inner cylinder is placed a material composed of saltpetre, coke, and charcoal. This material gives out carbonic acid and nitrogen gases—ignites on the application of a spark, and burns down rapidly, like a pastile. This material is fired by means of a fusee inserted in the neck of the machine, which is lighted by the discharge of a gun cap; the gun cap is struck by the hammer appended to the machine. This mode of igniting the material is an improvement on the original mode. The operation of the machine is duplex. The material gives out the gases as before mentioned; the gases passing through the perforated cylinders, find their way into the upper chamber formed by the cover; simultaneously the intense heat rarifies the air in the air chamber, the expanded air forces the water out of the water chamber up the pipe forming the handle, the water is then received by a copper pipe running round the interior of the body of the machine, and by means of small holes pours down on the heated sides of the large perforated cylinder—the water is converted into steam, the steam mingles with the gases in the upper chamber, they rush out together, forming the annihilating vapour. The Fire Annihilator is a Vapour Fire Engine.

Cornelius Carleton, Agent, 11 Eden Qy. Dublin.

1165 Hunt & Roskell, late Storr & Mortimer, 156 New Bond St. London, Manu.—A candelabrum in silver—a testimonial presented to the Most Noble the Marquis of Tweeddale.

The group represents an incident recorded in Buchanan's History of Scotland, said to have occurred in the reign of Kenneth III. A.D. 980, and to which tradition ascribes the origin of the noble house of Hay.

The Danes having invaded Scotland, were unsuccessfully opposed by the Scots who fled. A countryman, named Hay, was, with his two sons, ploughing in a neighbouring field, by the pass of Luncarty; when Hay seized the yoke from his oxen, and his sons, whatever instruments came readiest, and took their stations in the narrow pass, through which the fugitive Scots must proceed, and forced their countrymen back upon the Danes; and, joining in the conflict, successfully routed the latter. After this gallant exploit, Hay entered the city of Perth in triumph, carrying his yoke, and accompanied by his sons and a numerous retinue.

"At a consultation of the nobles, held a few days after at Scone, nobility was conferred upon Hay and his sons; and the king gave them as much land as the falcon would fly over. The falcon flew over six miles of country, afterwards called Errol. The king also assigned them three shields, or escutcheons, to intimate that the father and two sons had proved the three shields of Scotland."

These two latter scenes are displayed in basso relievo on the base, which is also embellished with figures of the wolf, boar, and dogs, illustrative of the sports of the period. The flowing branches of the candelabrum are enriched with vine.

Arrogant, Prop.—A Collection of Chinese and Japanese curiosities: Picture frames, and panels for cabinet, from Ningpo; figures and balls carved in soap stone, from Shanghai; josses, figures, and jars, carved in roots and bamboo, from Ningpo and Chusan; small cabinet and box, japanned and inlaid; pair of lacquered trays, and nest of turned boxes, from Japan; box of counters, cribbage board, and watch stand in sandal wood; chess and backgammon men, carved in ivory, with lacquered boards; paper cutters in carved ivory and mother of pearl; specimen of minute carving in olive stones, from Amoy; carved cup of rhinoceros horn, supposed to impart medicinal powers to drink kept in it, and pair of large vases, from Canton; antique vase on stand, from Amoy; several smaller jars, modern and antique, from Amoy and Foochow; Bamboo painted window screens, pair of candle stands on dogs backs, pair of small jars in red and green imitation stone, from Canton; gong, and stick for beating it; bronze josses and figures, from Amoy, Foochow, and Shanghai; small bronze jar inlaid with silver, from Foochow (rare); metal mirror on stand, silver card case and cross, from Canton; hat, shoes, and tail, of a blue button mandarin, with opium pipe, tobacco pipe, chop sticks, and razor; ladies’ embroidered dress and artificial flowers for the hair, as worn at Amoy; model of lady’s leg and foot, from Ningpo; pair of embroidered shoes, as worn by small footed ladies; fans and armlets, from Canton and Shanghai; oil paintings, by artists of Canton and Whampoa; copies of English engravings by Chinese artists; a copy on ivory, in water colors; paintings in water colors, from Shanghai and Ningpo; rice paper paintings, illustrating costumes, junk, boats, punishments, and the cultivation of the tea plant; pictures on wove paper (a rare manufacture).

1809 Hewett & Co. 18 Fenchurch St. and 58 Baker St. London, Imp.—Magnificent mandarin China jars; several very fine jars of mandarin china, and painted; jars and stands; pot pourri jars and covers, with dragons; mandarin garden seats; flower vases; jars and beakers; yellow match pots in imitation of bamboo; egg shell cup, cover, and saucer; enamelled copper cup and saucer; earthenware tea pot; richly painted punch bowl and stand; various china plates; nest of toilet pots; lacquered work table with carved ivory fittings; lacquered tables; lacquered cabinet with drawers; tea caddies and tea tray; pole fire screens, with birds, silk figures, &c.; ivory chessmen exquisitely carved, (made expressly for the Dublin Exhibition, the ball at the bottom of each has in it several concentric spheres); basket, work box, with internal fittings, vases, card racks, and cup, of carved ivory; ivory ball, containing 20 concentric spheres each carved in a different pattern, the time consumed in carving each ball being about one month; card basket, splendid fan, card cases, paper knife, and chessmen, of carved ivory; carved mother of pearl shell on a carved wood stand; set (140 pieces) of mother of pearl counters; card basket on pedestal and balls, paper knife, snuff box, letter tray, and card case, of carved tortoise shell; glove boxes, watch stand, and fan of carved sandalwood; pair of chop sticks and knife, in sandalwood case; embroidered screens; silver filagree bouquet holder; carved wood picture frame, from Ningpo; table, inlaid with ivory and wood; carved and inlaid cabinet; numerous clay figures, singular specimens of Chinese life; various figures, carved in bamboo and other woods; bamboo bird cage; embroidered apron and cigar case; toilet set, enamelled on copper; book, containing 12 drawings on rice paper; curiously carved slate; painted blind, made of bamboo; and akittysol or parasol; curiously carved rhinoceros horns and ebony stands; Chinese shoes and slippers; antique bronzes; gongs; hand screens; soap stones; lanterns; fans; metal hand furnace for keeping the fingers warm when walking in the street in cold weather, no gloves being worn; tray for burning joss stick; swanpan, or calculating board, in universal use among the Chinese; a Chinese rattle; porcelain land mark, to designate the boundaries of adjoining states; a military officer’s saddle, bridle, &c.; bamboo boat, and carved wood stand; curious Chinese carving from the root of a tree, and carved stand.
Bronze Series.

1. Twenty-seven broad hatchets of a dark red color bronze approaching to copper. They are of different colors, sizes and weights, and may be considered as exhibiting the simplest form, in which either copper or bronze antiquities are found in Ireland.

2. Twenty-five broad hatchets of full bronze. Some of these are unusually large, particularly one presented by Sir Matthew Barrington, Bart.; three of these hatchets were found with eight others at Derrynane, the residence of the late Daniel O'Connell, Esq. and were presented by Maurice O'Connell, Esq. M. P.

3. Thirty-four narrow hatchets of yellow bronze. These generally exhibit traces of hammering approaching to ornament, and though very simple in shape are frequently found along with other bronzes of every complicated forms.

4. Twenty narrow hatchets larger than those in No. 3. Some of these are ornamented with hammering in chevron patterns. They vary much in size, and might have been used in battle. These hatchets have generally traces of a handle, though none found with handles have hitherto been described.

5. Thirty-six long hatchets, with cross ribs, to prevent their sinking too far into their handles. There are two distinct types; one, with extended corners turned out, in shape resembling the heads of the war hatchets represented in the hands of the Amazons in ancient Greek paintings.—The other type has great strength, and is like hatchets of this kind found in Italy.

6. Thirty-nine long hatchets. In these the cross stop rib is nearly worn away. All of this form are ornamented with patterns also found frequently on cinerary urns. The pattern in hatchets of this class is generally very perfect, and indicates extreme antiquity, or some peculiarity in the composition of the bronze.

7. Thirty-seven palstaves, or spuds; these it is thought were secured in straight handles, and might have been used as celts or chisels to cut wood, so necessary in defensive warfare. In some of them we observe the cross rib has become a socket, to prevent the handle, by degrees, splitting and slipping down the blade.

8. Fifty-three palstaves of different patterns and sizes, exhibiting different methods for securing the ends of the handles.

9. Thirteen palstaves, with side loops, but in their general forms resembling those in Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8. Seventeen pocket celts, very light and long in form.

Three pocket celts, peculiar form, with hatchet shaped edges.

10. Sixty-seven pocket celts of various forms and sizes, and found in all parts of Ireland.

11. Seventy-nine do. do.

12. Forty-eight spear and javelin heads of different patterns, chiefly of the old Greek type, as represented on vases. Some of these have remnants of the handles still remaining in them; in all, we find lateral holes for the rivets to attach the shaft to the head, but in none has the rivet remained.

13. Sixty-nine javelin heads, all having lateral loops, but no rivet holes; they are of different patterns and kinds of bronze to those in Tray 12, &c. The broader javelin heads are remarkable for their peculiar lustre.
and freshness when found, they are generally so bright and like gold, parties finding them frequently mistake their composition for the more precious metal.

14. Thirty-five spear heads, some with perforated and ornamented blades, and of different patterns; the differences, not only in the material of these spears, but in their forms also, indicate totally different schools of design, and elements of taste, and lead us to look abroad for similar types.

15. Daggers with sockets for handles; one of these presented to the Academy by D. H. Kelly, Esq. was found with the wooden handle, apparently yew, quite perfect; near it is another dagger, with a bronze handle, said to have been found originally in the County of Kildare; this dagger in form resembles the ancient Egyptian and Assyrian daggers represented in the sculptures and paintings of Thebes and Nineveh.

16. Eighteen copper or impure bronze blades; some of these might be called scythes. It was thought by antiquarians that these blades might have been used formerly for chariot wheels, but latterly it is considered more probable, that they were originally fastened obliquely on a long handle, and so formed a very effective and dangerous weapon, like a bill hook. The tablet No. 89, containing 7 of these copper blades, was presented to the Academy by George W. Hemans, Esq. They were found together in a heap with their points downwards, at Hellswood, County of Galway; from the extreme perfection of their edges and points, these do not appear to have been ever used.

17. Twenty-eight swords and daggers of a Persian type, broad at the hilt and tapering to the point; the material of these weapons is generally very brittle, and only calculated for stabbing, but not for cutting and fighting, like the swords in No. 18.

18. Twenty-eight swords and daggers of the old Greek type, which resembles in form the leaf of the agave plant, so closely, they might be called agave-leaved swords; in length they are generally about a cubit, and from the great beauty and perfection of their shape, they were intended, like the old Greek sword, which they so closely resemble in shape, for actual combat. They are found almost always without hafts or handles, though the rivets which secured them, are often discovered quite perfect.

19. Fourteen swords and daggers of the Greek type; one of these has a deer horn handle, probably not very ancient; another has a modern iron handle annexed to the blade quite recently. In this tray there is a model in wood of an ancient sword found in a bog in the county of Wicklow; it is of great interest as exhibiting the shape of the handle of a sword of this class when perfect.

20. Fifteen swords of the Greek pattern, about a cubit in length.

21. Eleven swords of the Greek pattern; these are longer than usual, and indicate the use of cavalry or chariots; the shorter sword of this class being essentially that of a foot soldier.

22. Sixty-seven articles; comprising a miscellaneous collection of chisels, razors, arrow heads, gouges, butchers knives, maces, crotals, &c.; the exact uses of the greater part of the articles in this tray are unknown, but judging of them by the analogies in form which they bear to articles now or lately in use, they may be named as above; the hooked knives sharpened both on the outside as well as the inside of the hook, are said to be exactly similar to the knife used by butcher's in some parts of Spain, for slaying and skinning cattle, the use to which these were most probably applied in Ireland, where cattle were always so abundant, and corn very scarce, if at all cultivated, in the times when these bronze articles were used.

23. Four trumpet mouths; they may have been fastened to straight wooden tubes, by the rivet holes still remaining in them.

Two trumpet mouths, longer and more taper than the former, into which the wooden tubes were driven; in these, the bronze head was forced into the wooden tube.

24. Six trumpets probably used for speaking or singing, as they have large lateral openings for the mouth; the use of the trumpet for blowing and calling people together, and also for speaking to them when assembled, is indicated by the Hebrew Scriptures and other ancient authorities; the trumpets in these trays supply three varieties, and, with the great long rivetted trumpets also exhibited, prove that this instrument was well known formerly in Ireland; in this tray there is a collection of 19 small bell metal or bronze bells of different patterns.

25. Twelve large rings, probably armlets or ornaments for the ankles, 11 smaller rings and 18 miscellaneous articles, bridle mountings, rings, &c. &c.

26. Fourteen large rings, perforated laterally and with necks like bottles to the openings; nearly all of these have stone rings inclosed in them; 12 rings perforated laterally; these collectively form when strung through the side openings, a sort of necklace. In structure, these rings are exactly like tribute represented in the Egyptian paintings as being paid to the kings of Egypt, by some of the African nations; 7 strings of rings, generally called ring money; these differ materially in size and quality, some being composed of the most beautiful antique bronze, others of a base mixed metal; in this tray there are two open elastic rings with other rings on them—use unknown; they were found in their present condition with bronze weapons, &c. in the county of Galway.

27. Two double necked rings, like those in No. 26. When found, these had portions of chain attached, composed of sets of four and three rings of bronze, connected together with scraps of copper plate; one large ornament composed of arched shoulder plates and central front and back wheel shaped ornaments, connected with the shoulder plates by sets of chains formed of triplet links, joined imperfectly by scraps of copper plate; two circular ornaments composed of the antique bronze, having double the number of loops for chains with the wheel shaped centre ornaments above noticed, some few triplet links were found with them; also two centre pieces of a similar ornament, one imperfect, these are provided with half the number of loops attached for chains, with the wheel shaped centre ornaments. These differences in the number of loops, coupled with the character generally of all the articles belonging to this class, lead to the conclusion that these systems of chains were used as personal decorations, indicative of the relative ranks of the parties wearing them. A personal ornament of the same kind, but with four loops only to the centre pieces, is represented in Dr. Layard's plates, as worn by the private soldiers who are mounting the scaling ladders, and fighting the battles of the Assyrian kings.

28. Forty-two cheek plates for bridles, one of these has a part of the iron mouth piece attached. The patterns and ornaments on some are curious, particularly the representations of horses and dogs. Some of the more minute ornaments indicate that they belong to the same period with the silver pins generally.

29. Twenty-eight bridle bits of different patterns, more ancient than the last. In some cases the material of these had all the external character of the oldest and best bronze, still some devices, considered to be very early christian, are found used as ornaments on some of them. In several of these bridle bits, which superficially appear to be made altogether of bronze, there are lid internally in them cores of iron, used apparently for the purpose of economizing bronze, and leading to the inference, that, at the time these bits were made, iron was a cheaper metal than bronze. As castings, these bridal bits have in several instances great merit.

30. Eleven articles shaped like spurs or tuning forks, use not known. They are made of all kinds of bronze. They have two small loops or eyes, generally inside and near the ends of the forks; from their position, and as portions of chain have been found attached to them, it has been inferred they might have been used as handles to support or suspend chafing dishes or dishes used as censers. It has also been supposed that they were, at least in some cases, used as supports to hand bells, and so would have resembled, at least in use, the Egyptian sistrum, which has a strong likeness in its form to this instrument. A third notion is that these spur shaped articles were used as portions of the head stall of a bridle; and the fourth notion is that they were allowed to hang from the cheek plates of a horse's bridle so as to prevent him grazing when he is harnessed and ready for battle. In this tray we find 16 bosses or ornaments for horse furniture.

31. Ninety miscellaneous articles, consisting of ornamental figures, buckles, bosses, &c.

32. Eighteen portions of tubing, supposed to have been parts of the worms of ancient stills, and of small musical instruments. In this tray there are three heavy adze-shaped implements supposed to have been used in the dressing of leather.

33. One hundred and thirty-four cloak and hair pins, fibule, brooches, latchets, bodkins, &c. some of great variety and beauty. In this tray there are two complete examples of the stylus used by the ancients for writing on waxed tablets similar to the set exhibited.

Brass Series.

34. Fifty-one spurs of different periods and patterns in bronze, brass, iron, and steel.

35. Twelve stirrups chiefly composed of brass; 23 ornamental bosses for harness.

36. Ten brass Dutch tobacco boxes, 1 tobacco pipe in an ornamented case; the case of an oval watch; 2 almoners purse clasps, and 20 miscellaneous articles chiefly in brass, all found in Ireland.

Local Finds.

37. Twenty-nine articles from Lough Gurr, consisting of one bronze sword, to which a modern handle has been attached; 2 bronze spears, one of these is the largest and finest of its kind in the collection; a bronze basin and celt; three iron spears; two knives; six ornamented black bone handles; six stone celts, and four stone balls.

1812

38. Sixty-five Articles from Dunshaughlin, consisting of iron chains, swords, long knives, dirks, small knives, spears, sheers, iron fibule, a bronze palstave, javelin head, and drinking cup; 9 stones, peculiarly shaped and marked; also a number of fragments of combs and pins made of bone; several wooden caltraps, and a ring of deer's horn.

1813

Presented chiefly by Dr. Madden.

Articles from Strokestown, collected chiefly in the Crannogs or artificial islands in Clonfree and Ardakillen lakes, consisting of:

39. Eighty-three bronze pins and brooches; 2 bridle cheek plates; 14 articles and 1 palstave also in bronze; 3 stone articles; and 162 bone pins, bodkins, &c., of different patterns.

40. Eight iron spears, 9 javelin heads or points, 2 nearly perfect sets of eel spears, fragments of others, and iron fish spears; 3 perfect pairs of wool shears, and several broken fragments; an iron stirrup, and portion of a small bridle bit; a padlock, and sundry fragments of keys, &c.

41. One three-legged small pot, 2 iron ladles, 1 small bowl, 6 very small frying-pan, 1 smith's tongs, 2 saws for making combs, several tools for plaiting leather-work, sundry files and drills, some pins, hooks, and fragments of iron, copper, brass, &c.

42. Five hooked knives, 2 bill-hooks, 3 hatchets or adzes, 2 reaping hooks, 56 knife blades, 5 knives with handles, and 1 long sword, and 5 sharpening stones.

43. Thirty-six bone and horn articles, 5 carved or ornamented bones, 6 draft-men, 10 chess-men, 10 amber and glass heads, 30 fragments of hair combs, 4 tusks of bears, &c. Besides the articles in the trays, there is a long iron chain with a collar for a prisoner, and 2 large cruciform griddles for baking.

44. Antiquities presented by John Lentaigne, Esq., found at Ballinderry Lake, near Moate, county of Westmeath, consisting of 38 iron, bone, and wooden articles. Also a collection of 76 antiquities made by Mr. James Underwood, from excavations in Christ Church Place, Dublin, comprising specimens of work in leather, bone, wood, glass, stone, &c.

45. Fifty-one bronze pins, 2 buttons, 21 iron knives, 6 spear heads, 2 large fish-hooks, 12 bone pins, and 7 portions of combs, &c., also collected by Mr. Underwood, in the same locality.

46. A miscellaneous collection of iron antiquities from different localities, similar to those found at Dunshaughlin, Ballinderry, and Strokestown.

47. Three specimens of chain armour, several knives with ornamented handles, a pair of hinges, and other articles in iron.

48. Sixty-four iron keys of different patterns, from different localities.

49. Twenty-six spoons, 3 pairs of nut-crackers, 1 snuffers, 3 steeleyards, 11 harp pins, and sundry articles, names and uses unknown.

1815

Antiquities presented by the Shannon Commissioners.

From the excavations made at Keelogue ford and other localities near Athlone.

50. A collection of bronze hatchets, palstaves, pocket celts, arrow heads, &c.; in all 35 articles.

51. Twenty-two bronze spears of different forms.

52. Twenty-two swords and daggers, similar to those in tray No. 17.

53. Twenty-two swords and daggers, similar to those in trays No. 15, 18, 20, and 21.

54. Six tubes, 13 fibula, 8 ornamented pins, 2 latches, a curious bone nail or pin, and several small bronze rings, a portion of an armlet made of shale.

55. Twenty-four iron swords, daggers, skeans, spears, &c.

56. Eighteen iron battle axes, hammers, hatchets, bill-hooks, &c.

57. Fish spear or trident, a shingle knife, 2 matchlocks, fragments of a sword, all iron, 2 large silver candle holders.

58. Two bronze cooking vessels of exquisite workmanship; a wooden spade, protected with an iron edge, &c.; several spears, &c.; in all 19 articles.

59. Thirty-five articles in stone, containing 1 battle-axe, 1 perforated hammer, and cuir, 2 circular stones, 2 elliptical stones, 2 bone, and a number of celts of different patterns.
Besides the stone articles here exhibited, the Shannon Commissioners have, at different times, presented to the Academy, a large collection of stone celts not arranged in trays.

1816

Antiquities presented by W. T. MULVANY, on the part of the Commissioners of Public Works, &c. Forty-four specimens of Irish antiquities, and 25 from the private collection of Richard A. Gray, Esq., arranged in the following trays:

60. Five swords like those in Nos. 1, 20, and 21; one of these is the largest yet discovered. 2 swords like those in No. 17, one of these is the finest in the Academy collection. 4 hatchets, 2 pocket-shaped celts, 6 pins, and fibulae.

61. Nine spears, different patterns, like others in Nos. 12, 13, and 14; 2 tubes, the longer is most beautifully made, and is slightly ornamented; 1 armlet, and forked-shaped article like those in No. 30—all made of bronze; 3 long swords, with diverging points; 2 short swords, like Roman, one of these is in extraordinary preservation; 1 dirk and hilt, imperfect; 7 spears of different patterns; one bone dagger.

62. One sword, with blade, inlaid with six draped figures in gold; 1 modern sword, 1 blade of sword like the long sword in No. 42, 2 blades of skeans, 4 knives—all made of iron or steel; 3 brass buckles and 1 iron key.

63. One giesarm 2 modern swords, one battle-axe, 2 poignards, and 1 bronze bridle bit.

These articles were obtained from the excavations connected with the improvement of the Boyne and Deel rivers. (See Proceedings of the Royal Irish Academy, vol. V., Appendix, pp. xxxiv. & iii., &c.)

Articles collected by CHARLES S. OTTLEY, Esq., from the Lower Bann river, at Toome Bar, Portglenone, and Portna. (See Proceedings of the Royal Irish Academy, vol. V., Appendix, pp. lixiv., &c.)

64. Two two-handed swords, 4 perforated stone hammers; 20 coarse knives, 2 arrow-heads, 1 broad axe head—all of flint; 4 stone celts.

65. Three iron swords, 3 skeans, 1 spear head, and 2 fibulae; 1 bronze pot, with iron handle and feet, &c.

66. Seven bronze swords like those in Nos. 20 and 21. The form of one of these is peculiar; its perforated handle is like the fragment in No. 18. They indicate extreme smallness of hand in the party using them, and also great physical strength. 4 daggers like those in No. 17, 1 tube like those in No. 54, 1 spear with loops attached to blade, 1 hatchet, 1 celt, 1 palstave, and 1 very short dagger like those in No. 18.

67. One sword blade, Greek pattern. (This blade, and three others in the Academy's collection, found in different localities, are all defective in the casting, and have been made in the same mould.) 1 palstave, 1 hatchet like those in No. 1, and 2 spears—all in bronze; 1 ancient sword, 1 modern sword, 2 spears, 1 chain, and hatchet, in iron.

Articles collected by William Frazer, Esq., from the drainage districts of Castlebernard, Borris-in-Ossory, and Templemore. (See Proceedings of the Royal Irish Academy, vol. V., Appendix, pp. xxxvi. & Ivi., &c.)

68. Seven spear heads, 2 swords, 2 heavy axes, 1 cutting edge of wooden spade, like that in No. 58; 1 large hook, 1 horse shoe—all iron; 1 stone celt, and 1 bronze basin.

69. Four bronze swords—the longest of these is quite different in its material, shape, specific gravity, and in ornament, from all the others in the collection. 2 bronze fibulae, 7 bronze rings, 2 skeans, 3 iron knives, 1 iron sword, 2 wooden beetles, &c.

Collected by P. J. Klasen, Esq., in Brusna drainage district. (See Proceedings of the Royal Irish Academy, vol. V., Appendix, p. lviii.)

70. Two stone celts, 1 iron dagger, with wooden handle, inlaid with lead; 1 ancient iron sword blade; 1 bronze spear-head, similar to others in No. 12, but much superior in size and shape; 1 bronze brooch, 1 small stone celt, 1 bone spear-head.

1820

Collected by George Tarrant, Esq., in the drainage districts of Dunmore and Monivea.

One bronze spear head and dagger, 1 long piece of soft stone—others like it but not so long in No. 59; 1 portion of similar stone; 1 javelin head, 1 spear head, 2 portions of sword blades—all bronze.

1821

Collected by Frederick Barry, Esq., in the drainage district of Lough Mask and River Robe.

One iron war hatchet and small iron spear, 1 bronze cheek-plate (very small) for bridle bit.

Collected by Samuel R. Roberts, Esq., in the drainage district of the River Corrib. (See Proceedings of the Royal Irish Academy, vol. V., Appendix, lviii.)

71. One large modern spear head and cavalry sword, 1 ancient sword blade, battle axe, and javelin head, 1 bronze sword like those in No. 17, 1 stone bullet, 6 stone celt, 2 cannon balls, 1 hilt of modern heavy cavalry sword, and two rapiers.

1823

Collected by Thomas J. Mulvany, Esq., in the Ballinamone and Ballyconnell districts.

72. One bronze cup of beautiful workmanship, with a handle representing a bird’s head; 2 bronze brooches, 1 short sword, dagger, spear head, and hatchet, and 1 stone celt. From Loughs Oughter and Gowna, and River Erne districts.—1 dagger, 3 celt, and 1 bronze sword, 2 stone celt.

From Dungolman district.—1 large iron sword like those found at Kilmainham, but in almost perfect preservation.

Collected by John O’Flaherty, Esq., in the drainage district of Strokestown.

73. Five pins with rings, six pins, all of bronze, 1 fibula of white bronze of beautiful workmanship, 1 palstave, and 3 articles in bronze, 4 needles and 2 bone spears, 1 small bronze basin, 6 fragments of knives, &c., in iron, 1 wooden scoop.

74. A collection of nails; 2 axes, one with the wooden handle; 2 bill-hooks, 1 sheers, 2 fragments of swords, 1 sword, 1 spear, 1 gouge, 3 whet stones, and several small articles.

Articles collected by Charles S. Ottley, Esq., in the Lough Neagh drainage districts, from Lower Bann river. (Second donation).

75. Two swords, Greek pattern, and 1 dagger; 1 sword, Persian pattern; 2 large spears, with loops in blades; 1 spear, Greek pattern; 1 palstave and 1 square celt—all of bronze; 4 stone celt, 2 long pointed stone implements, 1 iron hatchet, and 1 pike.

76. One pointed stone, 3 wooden caltraps of hard wood, 1 copper hatchet head, 1 bronze dirk blade highly ornamented, an iron spear, sword, and bayonet, 3 brooches or pins, 1 cheek-plate of bridle.

From the Blackwater district—

77. One two-edged sword, part of sword hilt, cannon ball, bronze spear head Greek pattern; bronze pan of great beauty in workmanship, like those in No. 58, but larger; a flat stone celt, twenty-two inches long and four inches wide—a very peculiar specimen.

1826

Collected by Thomas J. Mulvany, Esq., in the drainage districts of Killeshandra.

One bronze sword, Persian pattern; a very fine iron skene blade; an iron pipe. From the Ballinamone district.—A bronze dagger and celt.

1827

Collected by R. Manning, Esq., in the Glyde district.

A stone pestle, the fragment of an armlet of shale, like one in No. 54; a thin circular stone.

1828

Collected by A. O. Lyons, Esq., in the Railway grieve, near Templemore.

A bronze capsule; a bronze celt, found at Lehid, county Galway; 2 medals of Pope Theodorus II. and Leo II., found in a cave at Shandon, near Dungarvan.

1829

78. Articles made of leather or hide.—2 buskins; 1 upper of shoe, carved and curiously inlaid; 3 shoes made of single pieces, and sewed with thong—one made of two pieces, ornamented; 2 shoes handsomely carved, made each out of one piece; a pair of twin pumps, made with double uppers, and out of two pieces of leather, and with no seams but those which unite the uppers to the soles. The heels are pegged, the workmanship is curious and perfect. It has been thought these shoes might have been intended for one of those exhibitions of art and craft which formerly took place at Tara. These shoes were found in the county of Cavan.

STONE ARTICLES.

79. Four cups; 8 hallowed stones, supposed to have been used as nut-crackers; 1 cup, with a portion of handle; 2 hallowed stone articles, 1 mould for arrow heads, 2 moulds for palstaves, 1 mould for ribbed celt, 5 moulds for ornaments, &c.; 3 bronze moulds or dies for glass ornaments; 1 bronze mould for clay pellets, to be used instead of stones with the sling; 1 set of brass button moulds.
80. A collection of perforated stone articles, containing 65 spindle stones of different forms; 17 small beads, 5 rings, 9 flat disks, supposed to be weights for nets; 11 large beads, 8 weights for fishing lines, and several articles names and uses unknown.

81. A collection of stone hammers, &c.—3 hammers used for killing cows, one with its wooden handle perfect; 2 hammers made of porphyry—from their shape and finish they are believed to have been used by gold beaters; 1 very large hammer, found near Killyleagh, supposed to have been used in making stockades; 1 stone battle-axe, like that in No. 59; 1 large hammer, found near Alianney Church, Queen's County; 1 long hammer—from its shape and proportions it appears to have been intended as a pattern for an iron hammer; 3 oval rings; 9 perforated stones, used probably with a thong or lasso; 2 weights.

82. Three stone plough shares; 3 large stone celts of peculiar shapes and finish, found near Oughterard, county Galway; 4 stone hammers, with indentations for an external handle; 1 weight; 3 celts, with superficial hollows for handles, &c.

83. Ten large stone celts of different patterns, found chiefly in the county of Antrim, and presented by Colonel Portlock, R.E. and others.

FLINT ARTICLES.

84. Sixteen double spike-shaped implements. They exhibit no signs of use. 2 spear-shaped articles; 5 blocks, from which spalls have been knocked off; 11 coarse knives, 1 leather cutter, 6 unfinished chisels or celts, 2 large and 5 small celts, with ground cutting edges; 1 chisel with ground edge, 1 kite-shaped javelin head.

85. 1 circular disk, polished and sharpened round the edge; 24 circular pieces, 2 circular pieces perforated, 11 pieces so shaped they resemble spoons with short handles, 6 similar pieces with distinct handles, 15 broad knife blades or flat scrapers, some of them exhibiting great care and labour in their manufacture; 14 curved scrapers, one indented as if for a tie; 1 fine pointed instrument, 2 large javelin heads. A collection of knives of different patterns, composed chiefly of spalls of flint knocked off blocks. A collection of flint and stone articles, with a small scale of copper or bronze found actually within a large cinerary urn discovered in the tumulus of Rath, near Drogheda.

86. Eight articles presented by Arthur R. Nugent, Esq.—9 roughly-made javelin heads, 9 broad javelin heads, 8 narrow javelin heads. In shape some of these so closely approach to one class of bronze spears in No. 14, we might almost infer that these were intended to have been copies of the bronze articles. In the intervals between the javelin heads, there are arrow heads of similar forms. The remainder of the tray is occupied with collections of different shaped javelin and arrow heads.

87. A collection of 242 arrow heads, with barbs. Many of these exhibit the high perfection to which the manufacture of articles in flint had arrived in those districts in the north of Ireland, where this material abounded. All these arrow heads, unlike those found in North America, are constructed so as to remain in the wound; and from the highly artificial shape of many of them, they appear to have been made in imitation of iron and bronze arrow heads, and probably as a cheaper substitute for the dearer article.

88. A collection of miscellaneous articles, chiefly in bronze, containing 13 specimens, from which portions have been removed for analysis by J. William Mallet, Esq.: 2 large bridle bits; 1 small horse bit, with spines; 3 bracelets; 2 copper fibulae, or bangles, in shape like gold ones, in safe No. 97. These appear to have been covered originally with gold leaf. 13 bronze needles and 1 fishing hook, 1 bronze sword, quite perfect, of Greek pattern, and 2 ladies, presented by F. W. Barton, Esq.

89. See notice of, under No. 16.

90. A glazed case, containing a collection of Danish and Norwegian antiquities, presented to the Royal Irish Academy by the King of Denmark and the Museum of Northern Antiquities, Copenhagen.

1. A polished flint quoin or axe, without back. 2. A polished flint axe, with sundry marks of the chiseling and smoothing. 3. Three flint axes, with backs smoothed on two sides. 4. Two flat flint axes, smoothed on all sides. 5 & 6. A rough gouge or hollow chisel made of flint, and another smoothed. 7. A cast of whetstone for gouges. 8. A rough narrow chisel, made of flint. 9. Two smoothed and polished chisels made of flint. 10. A cast of a stone axe, with a shoulder, and without a shaft hole. 11 & 12. A cast of a stone axe, with groove in the middle, and another with gripe or handle. 13 & 14. Two stone axes with round backs and shaft holes, and two smalle of the same. 15—17. A stone axe hammer.
with a broad back, and three others with backs curved outwards. 18. A cast of a small stone axe hammer. 19. Two casts of masses of flint, from which flakes have been struck off. 20. Six flint flakes. 21. An arrow head made of a flake of flint. 22. A heart shaped arrow head made of flint. 23. A trilaterial shaped arrow head made of flint. 24. A cast of a harpoon head, made of flint. 25. Two lance heads of flint. 26 & 27. A knife made of flint, with a (square or) quadrilateral handle, and another with ornamental handle. 28. a fragment of a rasp of flint, and cast of an entire ore. 29 & 30. Two crescent shaped flint knives, and another with saw teeth. 31 & 32. Cast of a quoin perforated in the upper part, and another with a groove in the middle. 33 & 34. Casts of two stones —use unknown, but probably to whet implements. 35. A boat shaped stone hammer, and cast of another. 36 & 37. An axe hammer made of stone, and cast of another with “knobbed” back, ornamented with stripes on both sides. 38. Cast of a splendid axe hammer, with knob-shaped back. 39 & 40. A perfect bronze sword with a knot on the head of the hilt, and a hilt of another. 41. Fragment of a bronze sword with hilt. 42. Two short swords or daggers, which have had hilts of wood. 43. Two lance heads of bronze. 44. Three celts of bronze. 45. Two palstaves of bronze. 46. An arrow head of bronze. 47. A small scythe of bronze. 48. Two knives with bent handles or grips of bronze. 49. A small bronze knife. 50. A utillus of bronze. 51. Four bronze pins with heads, two of them bent. 52. Two long pins of bronze. 53. Two bronze needles. 54. Two bronze pincers. 55. Three bronze collars, and two collars imperfect. 56. A spiral bracelet made of bronze. 57. An iron sword, from Norway, with trilaterial pommel. 58. A shell formed buckle, made of brass or bronze. 59. A draughtsman of bone. 60. Some mosaic and glass beads, and also a sort of jettones of glass; also, a stone hammer, two sharpened chisels and a flint knife and dagger —part of a previous donation.

92. Upright case, containing the cross of Cong, presented to the Royal Irish Academy by the late James MacCullagh, LL.D. (See Proceedings Royal Irish Academy, vol. I. pp. 326—9; and Description by Dr. Petrie, vol. IV. pp. 572—85).

93. Upright case, containing a collection of ancient Irish bells, &c.

94. Upright case, containing a collection of cinerary urns, &c. found in Ireland.

95. Horizontal case, containing a model of an ancient structure found in Drumkelin bog, in the parish of Inver, county of Donegal. Presented to the Royal Irish Academy by Major Larcom. (See Archaeologia, vol. XVI. pp. 381—7).

96. Upright case, containing the remains of a circular vessel, originally formed of three pieces of wood, and filled with butter, found in a bog near Abbeyleigh. Presented to the Royal Irish Academy by Lord De Vesle.

97 and 98. Two iron glazed safes, containing a collection of gold antiquities found in Ireland, viz. —

A. Two torques, weights 27 oz. 7 ds. 20 gs. and 12 oz. 7 ds. 13 gs. said to have been found at Tara, co. Meath. (See Proceedings Royal Irish Academy, vol. I. 274—6). One small torque, weight 3 oz. 3 ds. 15 gs. These are all long enough to go round the waist. They are made of four fillets of gold, nicely fastened together, apparently without solder.

B. Two small torques, weights 19 ds. 18 gs. and 17 ds. 12 gs; each made of one broad band of twisted gold.

C. One small torque, weight 12 ds. 14 gs. made of a narrow fillet of gold.

D. One small torque, weight 12 oz. 10 ds. 7 gs. made of thick bar of gold, twisted so as to represent a bank of wire.

E. One small torque, weight 5 oz. 3 ds. 18 gs. made of plain circular bar of gold. All these are large enough for the neck, and end of torques; weight 4 ds. 19 gs.

F. One torques, weight 9 oz. 16 ds. 18 gs. made of plain square bar of gold. The two last said, to have been found together near Enniscorthy.

G. One torques, weight 3 oz. 9 ds. 9 gs. made of flattened bar of gold, and now bent up into the use of an armlet.

AO. Seven beads, shaped like double cones, weighing from 9 to 11 grains each.

AP. Seven beads, shaped like the last, but expanded at their ends, weighing from 1 dwt. to 4 gs. to 1 dwt. 10 gs. each.

AQ. Seven beads or cylinders, weighing from 5 gs. to 7 gs. each.

AR. A cupped shape ornament (imperfect), weight 16 ds. 2 gs.

AS. Three ornamented head ornaments, with lateral circular disks, and made to resemble wire work. No. 1 ornamented with seven ribs or bars, weight 3 oz. 5 ds. 5 gs. In this the imitation gold wire-work is very fine and beautiful; one of the lateral disks is wanting. No. 2 ornamented with four bars or ribs, weight 4 oz. 0 dt. 1 gr. In this the imitation wire work is coarse, but the effect of the ornament is good, and though one of the side ornaments has been much injured, the parts might be restored and made perfect. No. 3, ornamented with five bands or ribs, divided by an imitation of the torques pattern. The imitation of wire work is found only in the ruins inside and outside; weight 7 oz. 8 ds. 1 gr. This wants one lateral disk; that which remains is flat, unlike those belonging to the two other ornaments, which are slightly convex. The lateral disks are all sown on the arched part of these ornaments with fine gold wire thread, and the disks are ornamented with cones resembling the beads described above.

AT. One ribbed circular disk with central opening, weight 1 oz. 2 ds. 2 gs.

AU. Two fillets of gold. No. 1, broad and ornamented with a wheel pattern, weight 5 oz.; No. 2, narrow, and ornamented with a fine dotted pattern, weight 1 dt. 2 gs.

AV. Skewer, or pin, very rude in its form, weight 1 oz. 17 ds. 6 gs.

AW. Two fibule, with pendant ring ornaments. No. 1, weight 3 ds. 14 gs.; No. 2, weight 2 ds. 12 gs.

AX. Five circular disks or spangles, with cross-shaped ornaments. No. 1, large, like the flat lateral disk of head dress No. 3, noticed above, weight 13 ds. 20 gs.; No. 2 (similar to No. 1), weight 13 ds. 10 gs.; No. 3, smaller and thinner, weight 4 ds. 12 gs.; No. 4, ornamented with a cross formed of triangle; No. 5 (like No. 4), weight 2 ds. 2 gs. (imperfect).

AY. One lunett ornament rudely ornamented, and without terminal disks, weight 2 oz. 2 ds.

AZ. Eight lunett ornaments with terminal disks. No. 1, presented by his Excellency Earl De Grey, Lord Lieutenant, weight 4 oz. 3 ds. 22 gs.; No. 2, weight 3 oz. 4 ds. 3 gs.; No. 3, weight 1 oz. 10 ds. 11 gs.; No. 4, weight 1 oz. 7 ds. 15 gs.; No. 5, weight 1 oz. 3 ds.; No. 6, weight 1 oz. 0 dt. 9 gs.; No. 7, weight 18 ds. 2 gs.; No. 8, weight 16 ds. 16 gs. All these are ornamented with crossing and zigzag lines, arranged in different patterns.

BA. Two fragments of a lunett, ornamented. No. 1, weight 8 ds. 15 gs.; and No. 2, weight 5 ds. 12 gs. The pattern on this is composed of triangles filled in with dots, and quite unlike to those on all the perfect specimens.

BB. One lunett, without ornament and much expanded, weight 18 ds. broken in two pieces.

BC. Four oblong thin plates, plain. No. 1, weight 2 ds. 18 gs.; No. 2, weight 2 ds. 6 gs.; No. 3, weight 1 dt. 21 gs.; No. 4, weight 1 dt. 8 gs.

BD. Two oblong thin plates with hooks attached. No. 1, weight 4 ds. 2 gs.; No. 2, weight 3 ds. 17 gs.

BE. Four oblong plates, ribbed. No. 1, weight 2 ds. 4 gs.; No. 2, weight 2 ds. 5 gs.; No. 3, weight 1 dt. 18 gs.; No. 4, weight 1 dt. 18 gs. Nos. 2, 3, and 4, were presented by W. T. Mulvany, Esq. on the part of the Commissioners of Public Works.

BF. Fragments of thin gold spirals, some with hooks. They appear to have composed originally neck or arm ornaments; weight 2 oz. 13 ds. 15 gs.

BG. Collar or gorget made of red gold, and ornamented with three ribs dotted with nail head pattern. The workmanship rude, but very effective. It is broken in four pieces; total weight 16 oz. 11 ds.

1854 John F. Shearman, Esq. Kilkenny:—

An antique jet necklace.

1855 Macleod of Macleod:—

Rorie More's Horn.—This horn has been handed down from generation to generation in the family of Macleod of Macleod from the ancestor whose name it bears, Sir Roderick Macleod, of that ilk. It is customary for the heir of the family on attaining the age of 21, to drink off this horn full of claret at a draught; it contains nearly two bottles.

1855a The Dunvegan Cup belongs to the Macleod of Macleod, the head of the clan of that name, and has been preserved at Dunvegan Castle, the family seat in the Isle of Skye; it is made of oak, wrought and embossed with silver, and was probably used in ancient times as a chalice; the inscription has been variously read; Sir Walter Scott has given one reading in a note to the Lord of the Isles, which was thus:—“Uf Johannes mich-magni Principis de Hr manae Vich Liahici Mahryneil, et sperat Domino Ihesu dari dementiam illorum opera Fect Anno Domini 993 onili onin.”

Dr. Wilson of the Society of Antiquarians in Scotland, makes the date more modern, and reads the inscription as follows:—“Katerina Nigegneill uxor Johannes Megneger principis de Firmonac me fieri fiat Anno Dommini, 1493; onli oninice in te sperant omine, et tu dos esam illorum in tempore opportunio.

1890 CARTER, WILLIAM, 6 Mespig Parade, Dublin.—Model of Ruins of Monasterboice, co. Louth.

1891 CASHEL, Very Rev. the Archdeacon of, Thurles.—A rare and early Irish engraving, by W. Simpson of Waterford, date 1646. It appears to have reference to the political troubles of Ireland during that period. No other copy is at present known, nor are any further particulars of its history within the knowledge of Exhibitor.

1892 CHANDLEE, THOS. MOORE, Ballitore—Model of Stone Cross at Moone Abbey, co. Kildare; model of Cromlech, called Labacally, near Glanworth, co. Cork; model of an Irish cabin.

1893 BERWICK, EDWARD, Queen’s College, Galway.—Ancient map of Galway, A.D. 1650; old Municipal map of Galway, commencing A.D. 1484.

1894 McGILICUDDY of the Reeks, Whitefield, co. Kerry.—23 Manuscripts, with dates from A.D. 1597 to 1700, comprising royal and other distinguished autographs of that period.

1893 The great two-handed sword, said to have been used by Sir Almericus St. Laurence, the founder of the Howth family, who landed in Ireland in 1177.

1897 BAILLIE, EDWARD, London.—Stained glass window, executed in the ancient Irish style by Exhibitor.

1897 A MARCHAND, Rue d’Augoulême du Temple, Paris.—Stained glass—style, 15th century.

1893 BRUCE, Sir HERVEY, Downhill, co. Derry.—Part of the walls of Herculaneum, painted in fresco. Herculaneum was destroyed by Vesuvius in the year 79; consequently this fresco is painted upwards of 1,700 years.

1899 Ancient Roman helmet, found in the tomb of the Horatii, near Rome.

1900 Exhibited by ROBERT BALL, LL.D.—1. A restoration of the celebrated instrument, commonly called the harp of Brian Boróimhe. It is the oldest known specimen of Irish harp, and is preserved in the Dublin University Museum.

2. A restoration of the Dalway harp; the arm of the original is in the possession of M. Dalway, Esq. of Carrickfergus; the bow belongs to Mrs. Sherrard of Thornhill; the sounding board has been lost—it is restored from analogy. The original was made for Sir John Fitzedmond Fitzgerald of Cloyne, in 1621. This was a very remarkable and beautiful instrument.

3. A restoration of the charter horn of the Kavanagh’s. The original is preserved in the University Museum.

1901 MORRISON, Dr. Leeson St. Dublin.—The Irish union pipes. This ancient musical instrument, by the Elder Kenna, about 1767, is in fine preservation, and a good specimen of his skill and workmanship. These pipes manifest great ingenuity in construction; the tones are sweet and melodious, and the chords full and singularly expressive of the passions. The cushlanang, or bagpipe, is described in the ancient chronicles of Ireland as far back as the 10th century, used both as a war instrument and as an accompaniment to the crenau at funerals.

1902 ROE, HENRY.—Watch said to have been worn by Charles the First, on the day of his execution, and to have been presented to the ancestor of Colonel Pratt, of Cabra Castle, by Oliver Cromwell.

INTRODUCTION.

While the present Exhibition is chiefly occupied with those productions of nature which are the objects of utilitarian industry, the modes by which dynamical laws or motive powers are applied and combined in the processes of utilisation, and the results of those processes upon the objects utilised—that is to say, with Raw Materials, Machinery, and Manufactures—it has not confined itself wholly to them. The Fine Arts have been admitted to a place in the Exposition, and that to an extent not heretofore conceded to them.

It has not been without consideration that the claims of the Fine Arts—in their abstract character, and viewed apart from utilitarian industry (if, indeed, they can ever be justly so viewed)—have been recognised. The difficulty of exclusion appeared at the least as great as of admission. It is not easy often to draw the line of demarcation between objects which come within the strict limits of the Fine Arts, and those Arts which are purely utilitarian in their character. There are few of the latter which do not, to a greater or less extent, include or intimately ally themselves to the former; and, therefore, were the boundary to be defined with a scrupulous determination to exclude every article whose object is not solely utilitarian, the result would be to reject from the Exhibition much that now finds a place within it. When the mere necessities of life have been satisfied, civilization superadds to the useful the ornamental, and soon learns to recognise it as a necessity of life also; for the perception of the beautiful is innate to the mind of man, and when the useful has been achieved, the cravings for the beautiful will seek to be satisfied. Hence Sculpture, in the most extended acceptation of that term, enters into the composition of a vast proportion of the articles designed for utilitarian purposes. The same may be said of Painting. In truth it is difficult, when once we have emerged from the rudest and most elementary state of society, to deny that the Fine Arts are themselves utilitarian. The desires of the eye for that which is beautiful in form and color, if not essential to mere existence, assuredly are so to the enjoyment of life; and hence Sculpture and Painting, in the abstract, may, it is presumed, be fitly exhibited without transgressing the strict limits which should be assigned to an Industrial Exhibition.

Under this conviction the Committee have admitted works of Fine Art which are not utilitarian, in the ordinary sense of the word; and they have done so the rather that the study of Sculpture and Painting is essential to perfection in the ornamentation of almost everything in ordinary use. Nor let it be forgotten, as one of the uses of the Fine Arts unconnected with industrial objects, that the Statuary and the Painter contribute to the pages of History as well as the Scribe or the Printer. The former perpetuates and diffuses the forms and the character of historical persons and events, of natural history, scenery, and costume, as the latter cannot do.

In furtherance of these views, a Fine Arts Court has been constructed in the extreme southern aisle, between the Archeological and Mediæval courts, principally for the reception of Paintings; and the Committee have been enabled to bring together a considerable collection, at once interesting, as exhibiting the progress of the Art in modern times, and instructive, as containing some superior specimens of the Ancient Masters of the Art. Classification in relation to ages and countries rather than to schools has been adopted; but the collection will be found to contain examples of the earlier schools of Italy—the Lombardic and Venetian, the Raphaelite and Bolognese, of the ancient Flemish school, and of the modern schools of France, Belgium, Germany, and Great Britain. Many of the works of these modern schools exhibit the great progress of the Art of Painting towards another grand development in its history.

In addition to Paintings of the character mentioned, places have been assigned to Pictures which are the product of mechanical skill and the application of scientific discovery; such as specimens of Heliography, or the process whereby the actinic rays of the sun produce permanent pictures of objects upon metallic plates.

Encaustic Painting, Chromo-Lithography, and uncolored Lithography, may also be classed under the general head of Painting.

The application of all these various branches of Painting, as ornamentation, to articles of use—upon ceramic manufactures, as china, porcelain, earthenware—upon glass, slate, enamel, and japanned goods, papier machè, paper-hangings, and decorative furniture of all sorts, have their appropriate places in the various manufactures under which the decorated articles are classed.

In the Fine Arts Hall have also been placed some objects of Sculpture—statues and busts in marble; the greater portion, however, of the Sculpture, including marbles, bronzes, casts in clay and other materials, have been dispersed throughout the nave and aisles in a manner which adds greatly to the interest and effect of the general exposition. Amongst them are to be found, in the casts from the bassi-relievi Sculptures of the Metopes of the Parthenon at Athens, the finest exponents of the Phidian era of the art, exhibiting the unrivalled excellence of the Greek sculptors, resulting from their perfect acquaintance with anatomical structure and mechanical balance, and their true perception of form and sentiment. It will be instructive to contrast these with the specimens of the Etruscan school, as exhibited amongst the ceramic manufactures and mark the absence of flow in the draping, the meagreness in the treatment of details, the exaggeration of attitude and action which invariably characterise the latter.

Several good illustrations of Greek and Roman Sculpture during the post-Phidian eras may also be seen throughout the nave, some of them possessing high merit. There are some specimens of the Italian school, after the revival of Sculpture in the eleventh century, one of which, as the work of the painter, Raphael, commands attention. The Sculpture of British artists of the present age is abundantly and creditably exemplified, and the works of some foreign Masters give a favorable impression of their progress in the Art.

Besides the subjects already adverted to, Sculpture embraces within its limits the Modelling and Plastic Arts, and includes works in Stone, in Metallic and Mineral productions, in Ceramic and Vitreous compositions, in Animal and Vegetable substances; in fine, in whatever is capable of being wrought into form by the tool or the finger of the Statuary; and that, whether in relief, as in medals, coins, gems, or in intaglio, as in dye-sinking, seal-cutting, &c. The application of Sculpture to the useful Arts takes a range of vast extent. Wherever the form or outline of articles is not rigidly prescribed, the Sculptor and the Modeller are called in to give variety and beauty to figure; such is the case in gems and jewellery, in vases, urns, tazze, drinking-cups, and other vessels, in candelabra, and in ornamented furniture, &c. When Sculpture is found in these combinations, it is transferred to the particular class of manufacture to which the decorated article belongs.

In connection with the Fine Arts Department, the Mediæval and Archæological courts are to be classed and studied. The former contains within it a large development of the Fine Arts—of Sculpture and Painting—as monumental brasses, corones lucis, and windows of stained and painted glass. The latter possesses a rare and valuable collection of objects of ancient art, principally Irish, highly important, illustrating the state of the arts, sciences, and manufactures in this country during several centuries.

John Philip Kemble, as Coriolanus, Sir T. Lawrence, - - - - The Earl of Yarborough.

"This picture was painted for the late Sir Richard Worsley, of Appuldercombe Park, Isle of Wight. Sir Thomas Lawrence met the present Lord Lansdowne one day on the Pier of Ryde, who enquired of him where he was going; ‘To Lord Yarborough’s, at Appuldercombe,’ said the painter, ‘to see an early picture of mine—Kemble as Coriolanus.’ Meeting Sir Thomas Lawrence the next day, Lord Lansdowne asked him what he thought of the picture; to which he replied, ‘I am glad that I went to Appuldercombe to see it; but at the same time it makes me melancholy to think how little I have gained in the mastery of my art since the early period of my career when I painted it.’"

Prove the block forms the head of no blockhead;
What a face full of talent, and goodness, and sense,
Has that man with his hand in his pocket.

"That hand holds no hard, sordid gripe of his gold,
For the good of mankind he'll unlock it;
For science and art thousands freely are told,
By this man with his hand in his pocket."
